QUICKLY STOPS HEAD COLDS AND SNUFFLES

Catarrhal Germs Cause of Most Colds. New Germieldal Air Trentment Best Remedy for These Common Ailments.

Reliable authorities say that upwards of 90 per cent of the so-called colds in the head per cent of the so-called coids in the head and throat are in reality dangerous indications of the presence of acute catarch. When you hear a person sneeze or cough it's almost certain they are throwing catarrah germs into the air for some other person to breathe and it's just as certain that the person breathing these germs will soon have catarrh or a catarrhal cold. The time to make these germs narmless and drive out your catarrhal cold is the very instant you feel a desire to sneete or cough, or start to snuffle and wipe your mose every few minutes.

The quickest and surest why to stop a mead cold and drive catarrhal germs out of your system is to pour a few drops of the oil of Hyomes (pronounced High-o-me) into one of the Hyomes inhaling devices which comes with each large package and place the inhaler between your lips and breathe the germicidal but pleapant smelling air into your loss, throat and lungs. This air utterly destroys all catarrh germ life, quickly opens the closed air passages, makes breathing easy, clears your stuffed up head, cleans out your throat and ends your snuffling and nose blowing. There certainly is no quicker or more satisfactory way of breaking op a cold, even after it is well started, and a tew weeks' use will do away with all canger of chronic catarrh. Sold by driggists ever, where including O'Donnell's Drug Store, whe agrees to return the full purchase price to any who use it and are not gatisfied. It buying Hyomel for the first time be very sur to get the large size which contains the in haler as this is very essential for best results—

MAY MAKE SOLDIERS | General Assault Upon Public Lands in West Organizing in Senate

Western Members Have Eyes on Bung of Brand-New Pork Barrel—Bills Introduced Provide for Turning Over to States 30,000,000 Acres of Public Domain.

By JUDSON C. WELLIVER.

The Senate has its eye fixed on the bung of a brand-new pork barrel that is seemingly being set up by the Western States with the purpose of piping off a big layer of cream from the Federal milk

Uncle Sam having for a number of years manifested indisposition to separate himself from the remaining parts of the public domain with his old-time amiability, the Western States are organizing to get the public lands turned over them, for their administration the point where it becomes apparent admitted to the Union, is now asking that a general assault on the public 5,000,000 more. Senator Mark Smith havdomain is organizing. Already bills ing introduced the bill. In this case have been introduced in the present again, the proceeds are to be used for Congress which provide for turning over to Western States about 30,000,000 acres of public lands. This is not a great area when compared to the 800,000,000 acres which still remain within the public domain. But when it is considered that perhaps half the public lands are of no practical value, and that these proposed grants would be selected from the good lands, it becomes evident that a con- them. siderable inroad on the remaining national estate is in sight.

For a number of years after the conservation movement had gained strength enough to command respect, there was little effort at getting control of the public lands. But the last few years have seen a decline of interest in conservation measures. Something like a shock was given to advocates of this policy when the Senate Committee on Public Lands reported favorably a bill by Senator Key Pittman of Nevada to cede to his State 7,000,000 acres of the public lands within the State. The bill was introduced on December 16, and re-ported the very next day. Then its ported the very next day. Then its progress was checked, and the other day when it came up in the Senate there developed a discussion which made clear that at least there will be a determined effort to block the general assault on the remaining national treasure.

Fourteen Bills in Senate. This Pittman bill is one of fourteen thus far introduced in the Senate, to give public lands to the States. In the

Another Colorado request is represented by the Shafroth bill, to grant have been at one time or another part 1,000,000 acres in that State, these to be of the public domain, the United States selected by the governor from any public lands, whether in or outside the for-

The campaign has now developed to acres of the public land when it was road construction and maintenance.

It would be a mistake to assume that only the members from the public land States favor these grants. Not a few States favor these grants. Not a few from States which have not an acre of public lands are in favor of giving the Western States their lands, on the ground that the States know better what they want to do with them, and that the National Government has made a mighty bad fist of administering them. There is no doubt about this latter accusation; but in recent time the Federal Administration has been vastly improved, and to enter now on a genimproved, and to enter now on a general scheme of turning over the lands to the States would be to erase the accomplishment of recent years that has looked toward a really intelligent and fled. policy of national conservation policy of national conservation.

The remaining public lands are conservatively estimated to be worth tenbillions of dollars. A great area in the forest reserves, and other tracts which are underlaid with great coal measures, are certainly of very large value. Still greater in extent, though not so valuable, are the grazing lands. Immense mineral wealth, and valuable waterpowers are also included in the domain.

A Reversal of Policy. The demand that the public lands be turned over to the States is a complete reversal of the policy at the beginning of constitutional government. After the revolution the great region beyond the Allegheries, and much of that to the States, Believing it better to have these administered by the nation, and ulti-mately, as they should be settled, cut up into new States, the thirteen original sevada measure proposes that the proceeds from the lands shall be devoted to the public schools, and the State University.

Utah has had a bill introduced by Senator Smoot, to give it a million to the public schools. The measures of the early period of constitutional government; without doubt it went far to make certain that the new constitutional reignes and the second schools.

tion, purchase of a disputed section from Texas, the Gadsden purchase, and Alaska. In addition to this, the Government has spent an aggregate of $495,000,000 in extinguishing titles of Indian tribes; none of these payments to the Indians have ever been made by the States. Yet the lands thus bought have in many cases been tracts entirely within a single State. Finally, the National Government has spent over $145,000,000 surveying and administering these lands.

A total of about three-quarters of a billion dollars can thus be calculated, that the Government has expended in getting the public domain; the States have spent nothing; rather, the Eastern States, as already shown, have willing-have spent nothing; rather, the Eastern States, as already shown, have willingly surrendered their public lands to the nation. The contrast between the Eastern States thus granting an empire to the nation, while the Western States ask the nation to give an empire to them, is at least impressive.

The struggle of the Westerfn States to get their lands will go ahead so long as there is any public land left. In the Senate, because the States have equal representation there, the Western States are always stronger proportionately, than in the House. It will be no surprise if the Senate shall pass some of the cession measures; but it some of the cession measures; but it does not seem probably, unless politics gets sadly mixed in the business, that gets sadly mixed in the business, that the House will acquiesce at present in such measures. However, the Senatorial pressure is hard for the House to resist, and the fight is going to be an interesting and highly important one.

The national song of the French, the 'Marseillaise," was composed by Rouget de Lisie, a captain of engineers quartered at Strasburg when the volun-teers of the Bas Rhin received orders to join Luckner's army. They had no music, but at the suggestion of Dietrich, the mayor of Strasburg. De Lisle composed this song on the night of April 24, 1792. It was subsequently sung in Marseilles with immense success, hence its name. The song as it stands is the greatest revolutionary hymn in the world. The French government recently transferred the body of Rouget de Lisle (who suffered imprisonment for his revolutionary opinions during his lifeime) to the Palace des Invalides with Freat pomp and ceremony.

The song became popular during the Franco-German war. The national hymn of Austria was emposed by Haydn, and is known as the "Emperor's Hymn."

The words of the "Star-Spangled Banner" were written by Francis Scott Key, an American prisoner on a Brit-Key, an American prisoner on a British man-o'-war during the bombardment of Fort McHenry, in 1814. The melody is an old English drinking song.

The words of "Yankee Doodle" were probably written by a Dr. Shuckburgh, a surgeon in the French and Indian wars. Halliday, the antiquarian, asserts the melody is derived from a chant used in the Italian churches of the twelfth century. It is well known that the song was a vintage song in France and Spain, and a song of the reapers in Holland. It is also said to be founded on a jig of 1745, known as "Kitty Fisher's Jig."
